

Under the RAK legislation, onshore companies have to apply for the following licenses:

Industrial License

- It allows holder to import raw material, carry out manufacturing and assembling activities and export the final product.

Commercial License

- It allows the holder to import goods, export and distribute or warehouse goods. It allows a maximum number of seven similar product lines or two diverse product lines.

Consulting and Service License

- It allows the holder to provide service in the following areas: management, business, labor, business development, feasibility studies. It can also include consulting in areas such as logistics, cargo accounting, among others. Two type of services can be registered under the same license.

General Trading License

- It allows the holder to trade with more than seven lines of product.

Educational License

- It allows the holder to open any type of learning or training institution, or any education related consultancy.

Note: Every license has different costs. Healy Consultants can provide an accurate quotation after agreeing with client's specific business needs. All government fees are to be supported by invoice.